In Memoriam

JOHN THOMAS HATCHER

1924 — 1954

He lived happily, worked joyously, and left us a comforting heritage of rich experience and friendship and work well done.

We will remember him not so much for any given word or act or accomplishment as for the total impact of his personality.

He was our friend. We loved him. He loved us.

In Memoriam

Our Classmate

ANNE FONVILLE BEASLEY

We respectfully dedicate this volume of the ACORN to Miss Lenora Patterson as an expression of our admiration for the work she has done toward making all who have known her better citizens. Throughout her career she has been a wise counselor, a true friend, and an inspiration to all.

Stars of the Show

FROM THE DECK

The River stretches far
In front of me
Beyond the years
There lie treasures of hope
Of joys, dormant now
And unshed, unanticipated tears

Waters almost hidden
Quite overridden by greater waves,
Move lasting memories
From this deck I can see
The years behind....merging
Into each other like the Gold and green of a sunset sea

Almost forgotten....that first day Of high school. So proud were we to be grown up at last.
And one by one those days slipped by
Classes....recess....home again
Shall those memories merge into the past?

Nor could I forget the familiar sound
The welcome sound of the bell
The glorious sound of the song
And who shall win
The race of the lunchroom
The race of the hungry throng?

Forgotten....almost are those wintry
Cold and windy
When we were allowed to go
And eat our lunch inside
But the gayest time, the happiest place
Was school on carnival day.

There were joys immeasurable
In our high school days
like the day we got our class ring
The long awaited day
...the things it stood for the thrill it brings

All these memories hold a place in my heart
That no waters can wash away no matter how far I may travel on the river of time....
No matter what the future may hold
Nor time unravel

What's Coming 'Round That Bend?

One evening I was sitting in my apartment feeling all alone and sorry for myself. Very unexpectedly the bell rang. "Oh, how nice," I thought, "someone to talk to." You can imagine how delightfully surprised I was to see Jo Ann Snead, my oldest and dearest friend.

After talking a while I discovered she was in town to attend a newspapermen's convention. I also found that she was editor of her own newspaper and that Cooper Beasley and Earl Cobb were giving her a great deal of assistance as assistant editor and business manager.

On reading the paper she had brought I found that several of my former classmates had come into the news.

As I continued to scan the paper, I saw an interesting picture. In the foreground of the picture I saw Bobby Bass and Cornell Cox, outstanding personalities in the business world, who were leaving for a luxurious vacation in Hawaii. In the background I saw Jerry Revels, the pilot and Gladys Allen, the stewardess.

An article which was very noticeable was headlined as follows: "Cashier in City Bank to be Tried for Embezzlement." Those concerned in the case were: Robert Ferrell, the certified accountant who found the evidence in the bank's books, Joe Carl Barbour and Linwood Johnson, detectives from the Batten and Hines Detective Agency, headed by Charlie Batten and Curtis Hines.

The names went on to this effect; lawyer for the accused; David Earl Strickland, witnesses Mabel Johnson, Faye Lee, and Helen Lee, who work in the bank. I know you will be interested in knowing that the judge, Billy Dan Allen, was lenient with the accused.

Another article which caught my eye told me that Robert Beasley is now a test pilot for Glenn Upchurch's aircraft plant.

Leaving the front page I saw that Carolyn Massengill was receiving recognition as the outstanding nurse of the year. How proud I was to know her.

Reading the advertisements I learned that Raeford Moore is operating a used-car lot; Harold Mayo is running for state senator; Fondzo Moore is operating a funeral parlor; and Genevieve Lassiter, with the aid of Ella Allen, has recently opened her beauty salon.

As all newspapers do, this one, too, had a sports section. This page informed me that Joe Lassiter is a successful basketball coach and Albert Lee is a big hit in the national league. After I had finished with the newspaper, Jo told me of a recent trip to New York during which time she saw several of our old friends. Among those she saw were: Patricia Allen, a medical missionary to China and Joe Baker and Raymond Johnson who are driving for a thriving taxi company. On a trip out to the airport she found Charlotte Barbour behind the information desk. She also found Lloyd Allen in the weather office of the airport, and he told her of his recent trip back to Four Oaks. He assured me that there were still some of the girls back home "keeping the home fires burning". Sylvia Lassiter fulfilled a longing and is ably coaching a top-notch girls' basketball team and teaching physical education. To mention a few of the "ald married girls", there are Rebecca Critcher, Kay Barbour, Veatrice Lee, Shirley Thampsan and Betty Jane Jackson. It seems also that Ann Keene and Annie Mazinga are being kept busy managing their day nurseries. Jean Parker and Thel Langdan, now happily married, are being kept busy, taa—caring for all thase chickens. Llayd really knew the tawn news.

Realizing, after all that reminiscing, that we were hungry, we decided to go down tawn to a restaurant about which we had heard a great deal. As we stepped inside the daor, we were met by the can-genial hastess, Ruth Langdan and several waiters, wha were nane ather than Lawrence Barefaat, Billy Blackman, Cecil Cobb, and Linwaad Creech. We found a table and had begun to pander aver a menu when I heard a vaguely familiar "naise". It was Janice Wilson, Mary Keene and La Verne Ingram. It seems that Mary and Janice were in town visiting La Verne while their husbands were an the west coast on business. We had to repeat the news about all aur classmates. In daing sa, I happened to think of three bays wha hadn't been mentioned. Upan asking about Babby Stanley, Larry Parker, and Eddie Ray Jahnsan, I learned the fallawing: Larry is teaching at the university and Babby and Eddie have built up a nice medical practice in Faur Oaks.

It was getting dreadfully late by then; sa we ended the review af the Class af 1955, and we went our separate ways after saying—"Let's nat wait this lang ta get together again."
